Republican Senate Candidate John Rust Backs Sen. Lankford's Bill to End Government Shutdowns

Wants lawmakers to do their job by working seven days a week until spending bills are passed

Seymour, Indiana - On Tuesday morning conservative businessman and Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate John Rust announced his support of Senator James Lankford's "Prevent Government Shutdowns Act". The bill aims to end government shutdowns for good by making lawmakers 'work seven days a week' until spending bills are passed.

In announcing his support, Rust gave the following comment, "This act triggers two-week stopgap spending bills and forces Congress to stay in Washington focusing on spending until the job is done. Farmers can't go home if the job is not done. Why do we allow our elected officials to skip town when they can't do their job?"

Our nation's economy is suffering from rampant inflation caused by career politicians. We cannot continue to charge our bills to a credit card we have no intention of ever paying off. Our children do not deserve the debt today's career politicians are hanging around their necks."
